

AIC 2020 Web Conference

Investment Environment for

Agri-Food Research and Innovation

Every year, experts in agricultural research, top government officials, industry representatives, entrepreneurs and members of the broader scientific community gather at AIC's conference. While the 2020 Conference will be delivered virtually this year due to COVID-19, we look forward to bringing everyone together (virtually).

Why you should partner with AIC 2020:

- Showcase your company's talent amongst decision makers & thought leaders
- Increase visibility of your products, services or brands to an influential audience
- Participate in important discussions that can influence policy direction
- Opportunity to network virtually with colleagues and attendees from across the country

The theme of the conference this year is the Investment Environment for Agri-Food Research and Innovation.

A few years ago, it was not uncommon to receive emails and calls from entrepreneurs seeking funding. Today we're getting calls from venture capital funds and other investors wanting to invest in the sector. However, there are still some important gaps: funding of early stage innovation, taxation, government support, etc.

The AIC conference will look at where agri-food research and innovation is today, in terms of the "investment climate".
