

Barbara Miller
Interim CEO
Canadian Food Innovation Network

Barbara Miller is an experienced food industry professional with public and private sector experience, including positions as Division President of Ault Foods (Parmalat) and Category Director, Marketing with the Campbell Soup Company.

Miller is also a former Deputy Minister with the Ontario Ministry of Economic Development and Trade, and served in the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs as Assistant Deputy Minister/Chief Administrative Officer and Director of the Food Industry Competitiveness Branch.

For more than 15 years, she has been the owner of a management consulting firm focused on strategy, business development and public-private sector collaboration. This has included start-up leadership roles with the Ontario Brain Institute and the Mental Health Commission of Canada and providing strategic advice to organizations like the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health, Let's Talk Science and Queen's University.

Miller has an MBA from Queen's University and an undergraduate degree in Food Science from the University of Guelph.