

Clélia Cothier
Project Manager, DEEP Space Food Challenge
Canadian Space Agency

Clélia Cothier is a Challenge Prize Fellow with the Impact and Innovation Unit of the Privy Council Office. Currently, she works with the Space Exploration Strategic Planning team at the Canadian Space Agency and oversees the development and implementation of the Deep Space Food Challenge. Prior to joining the government, Clélia worked with Desjardins' innovation lab to apply social innovation concepts to the business world and the financial industry, and developed open innovation projects like Coopérathon. Her goal is to act as a tri-sector athlete, by connecting and working with the private, public and social sectors on important societal issues. Clélia is also a board member of two Montreal-based organizations, Esplanade and Institut du Nouveau Monde. She holds a bachelor of arts in political science and international development studies from McGill University.